Student Internet Use Protocol

New technologies are shifting the ways that information may be accessed, communicated and transferred. Those changes may also alter instruction and student learning. Fort Vermilion School Division #52 (FVSD) offers students access to divisional electronic networks, e-mail, and the Internet (the electronic information highway).

Along with access to computers and people all over the world comes the availability of materials that may not be considered appropriate in the classroom. However, on a global network it is impossible to control all materials. Ultimately, the school staff, parents, and guardians of students are responsible for setting and conveying the standards that students should follow when using media and information sources. FVSD supports and respects each family's right to decide whether or not to allow their child to apply for access to the Internet.

Internet Guidelines and Responsibilities

Students are responsible for good behaviour on the Internet just as they are responsible in the classroom or school hallway. Communications on the Internet are often public in nature. General school rules for behaviour and communications apply to Internet use.

Individual users of the Internet are responsible for their use of the network. The use of their account must be in support of education and research and must be consistent with academic expectations of FVSD.

The user is also expected to observe the following network guidelines:

- Keep passwords confidential.
- Keep personal addresses and phone numbers of yourself and others confidential.
- Use the network in such a way that will not disrupt the use of the network by others.
- Treat others' data with respect. Do not attempt to modify or harm the data of another user.
- Use the network to access only authorized networks or computer systems.
- Network accounts are to be used only by the authorized owner of the account for authorized purposes.
- Use electronic mail with care; it is not necessarily private.
- Use only language that is appropriate to a classroom setting.

General Abuses

The fact that a user "can" perform a certain action on the Internet does not mean that they "should" perform that action. The use of the Internet is a privilege, not a right, which may be taken away at any time for abusive conduct. Such conduct would include, but not be limited to, the following:

- Downloading or possession of illegal or "pirated" software.
- Downloading or possessing programs or scripts used for the purpose of hacking, cracking, or for otherwise accessing computer systems or files for which you would normally not have access, or for the purpose of denying service to computers or files for others.
- The placing of unlawful information on the Internet.
- The use of abusive or otherwise objectionable language in either public or private messages.
- Accessing networks containing abusive or otherwise objectionable language.
- The sending of messages that will tamper or cause harm to Fort Vermilion School Division #52's or any other system.
- The sending of "chain letters" or "broadcast" messages to lists of other individuals or other type of action that will cause congestion on the Internet or slow down the work of others.
- Accessing any form of pornography, written or visual, at any time.
- Accessing hate literature or other media deemed unacceptable.
- Accessing any information of which the use would be deemed illegal in Alberta or Canada.

- Downloading or possession of illegal or “pirated” software.
- Downloading of any applications, screen savers, music, video, or zip files containing executable programs and applications or screen savers that is not directly related to current research or assignments.
- Failure to abide by a teacher’s request to avoid a particular site the teacher feels is unacceptable or inappropriate for the project or task at hand.
- Using a floppy diskette that has not been scanned for viruses.
